I admire my father because, He is funny. My father always puts a smile on my face. He is helpful, he is always helping people, especially his elders. My father is also fun to be around with, he always takes us to fun places. He always plays with me and my siblings. He can be coming home from work but he still plays with us. My father does not judge us. My father always wants us to be who we are, he does not want us to change for anybody. My father means much to me because, he is hard working, intelligent and creative.

I admire my father because, he is hard-working and inspires me to do the same. My father has never missed a day of work. My father always says that he works so we can have a better future and I appreciate my father for that. My father can be sick and he will still go to work. My father also made a fence so we can be safe and my dog can go outside. My father is also hard working because he did my grandma's garden. This is just one of the reasons why I admire my father .

I admire my father because he is intelligent. My father always helps me with my homework. Especially in math, sometimes it is hard. My father always works on the pipes. My father is always on the go and my father does not take a break from work. My father works on the pipes because he wants us to be comfortable. He works on the bathroom pipes when they break. My father also is intelligent because he makes floors. My father has been making a lot of new floors in my new house. He has been working his hardest to get it done. My father means much to me for this reason and many more. My father is one of the smartest people I know.

I admire my father because, my father is very creative. One reason why I think my father is creative is that he created a house for our chickens. He was building it day and night. I was there to help him and we finally finished, it was pretty and creative. Another reason why I think my father is creative is because he made our dogs doggy beds. My father finished in one day. My dogs loved the beds and my dad was very creative with them, he even put stickers on them. The last reason why I think my father is creative is because he made rat traps. My father said that he did not want rats near us or the chickens. So my father and I made rat traps. My dog was also there hunting the rats. As you can see my father is very creative.

I admire my father because he is extremely hard working, smart, and very creative. We have completed and done many things together. My father always does what is best for me and my family. He is always there when we need him, he has always helped our family. He is always working so we can have what's best. My father means much to me and this is just some of the reasons why. My father loves me and my family and he says that he can not live without us. He always says we are his pride of joy .
